Staffing, Employment & Annual Leave Policy

Employees will initially undertake a probationary/training period during which contracted hours may be reduced prior to commencement of the full contracted schedule, and holiday entitlement would be provisionally postponed. Successful completion of the probationary period will transition onto the standard contracted hours and usual holiday entitlement, and the responsibilities outlined within this agreement.

Standard staff shifts will ordinarily commence at 9:00am and conclude at 3:20pm for an average of four shifts per week, unless otherwise agreed or adjusted in line with operational requirements.

Employees are entitled to an unpaid 20-minute break during each shift, which may alternatively be taken as two separate 10-minute breaks subject to operational requirements and management discretion.

Annual leave requests must be submitted at least four weeks in advance wherever possible. Approval of annual leave will be subject to operational requirements and staffing levels to ensure adequate business coverage at all times. While management will aim to accommodate all requests fairly, there may be occasions where leave requests cannot be approved due to short notice/operational needs. All staff rotas and annual leave requests will be managed by Employee A in a managerial capacity on behalf of the ownership.

To maintain appropriate staffing levels, employees may not normally take annual leave simultaneously unless approved by management.

Each employee will receive a paid holiday entitlement of 122 hours annually. One week of leave is equivalent to 25 holiday hours. Employees may request individual weekend days off using holiday entitlement, with a full weekend off then equating to 6 holiday hours.

Holiday leave will generally be allocated in blocks of one or two weeks. Requests exceeding two consecutive weeks may require additional management approval.

Employees will be scheduled to work a minimum of one weekend day per week in a regular month, although weekend shift patterns may vary depending on operational requirements throughout the year - employees agree to reasonably support holiday and absence cover for other team members as part of their contractual responsibilities. Additional shifts required to maintain business operations may therefore be allocated where necessary, subject to Working Time Regulations, agreed contractual terms, and fair distribution across the team.

Employees acknowledge that flexibility and team cooperation are essential to the operation of the business and may therefore be required to undertake reasonable additional duties or temporary adjustments to shift patterns in accordance with operational requirements.

Employees acknowledge that, due to predictable annual operational fluctuations, contracted hours may be temporarily adjusted for a limited period of approximately one month each calendar year. During this period, working hours may be reduced and delegated on a rotational basis across the team in line with business requirements and fair operational distribution. Standard contracted hours will resume following the conclusion of this temporary adjustment period. Outside this period staff will work an average of 27 hours a week, staff will work no less than 24 hours a week or no more than 36 hours a week.

Employees are expected to ensure that all required working preparations, planning responsibilities, and operational procedures relevant to the following working day are completed prior to the conclusion of their shift unless otherwise instructed by management.

Employees should notify management of any personal commitments or appointments prior to completion of the following month's rota wherever possible. Staff may arrange shift swaps within an active rota period provided both employees agree and management is informed and approves the change.

In the event of illness or emergency absence, employees should notify management personally as soon as reasonably practicable before the start of their shift unless exceptional circumstances prevent this.

Any sickness absence exceeding seven consecutive calendar days must be supported by a valid fit note issued by a GP or relevant medical professional. Long term sick leave may see monthly pay amended in alignment with our payment structure.

Employees are expected to conduct themselves professionally and respectfully toward colleagues, customers, and management at all times. Behaviour likely to negatively impact the working environment or reputation of the business may be dealt with under the company disciplinary procedure.

Employees must not disclose confidential business, staffing, operational, or financial information during or after their employment.

Employees must not publish or share content on social media that could reasonably be considered harmful to the reputation of the business, its employees, or customers.

The company reserves the right to make lawful deductions from wages where applicable, including but not limited to accidental overpayments, overtaken holiday entitlement, or unreturned company property, in accordance with UK employment law.

Employees agree to comply with all applicable Brewch policies, health and safety procedures, and reasonable management instructions throughout the course of their employment. Brewch is committed to maintaining a fair, respectful, and inclusive working environment in line with UK equality and employment legislation, and all employees are expected to support these standards within the workplace.
